

Another piece of the puzzle was that labor unions were declining.

1

And that decline matched almost exactly the decline of the middle class' share of national income.