

And union membership grew until over 1/3 of non-government work force was in unions. This was a large enough share of the overall workforce that all workers benefited.